The author is expected to prepare the text in accordance with the requirements of the Publication Manual of the American Psychological Association (6th ed.). Abstract

If the paper is reporting research, the abstract should be structured. Non-research papers do not require structured abstracts but appropriate structuring usually helps reader comprehension and is recommended. The headings selected for a structured abstract are often better when they are the same as the headings used in the paper itself. A typical set of headings might be: context, objectives, design, setting, subjects, interventions, main outcome measures, findings, discussion, conclusions. You may choose not to use all these headings or you may decide that your abstract is better served with different headings. Abstract length is limited to 250 words. Assign up to six key words (or phrases) for indexing.
